The residence in question was 266 B Street northwest, and, in reply to the Enalth Department's request, that the moccupied premises be given proper supervision in order to guard the personal property therein, the major of poice said he would be glad to guard the house on the outside, but he did not think the men of the force ought to be subjected to the danger of infection by handling the clothing in the house, or otherwise coming in contact with the infected articles there.

In response to this objection, the Health Officer made a somewhat peppery report to the District Commissioners, declaring there was no danger.
